

Headache

"My father has been a sufferer from sick headache for the last twenty-five years and never found any relief until he began taking your Cascarets. Since he has begun taking Cascarets he has never had the headache. They have entirely cured him. Cascarets do what you recommend them to do. I will give you the privilege of using his name."—E. M. Dickson, 1120 Resner St., W. Indianapolis, Ind.

Almost Incapacitated.

A colonel in General Lee's division in the late Civil War sometimes indulged in more apple-jack than was good for him. Passing him one evening, leaning against a tree, the general said: "Good evening, Colonel. Come over to my tent for a moment, please." "S-s-cuse me, g-g-en'ral, s-s-cuse me," replied the Colonel. "It's 'bout all I can do stay where I am."

The Silk Hat Coal Scuttle.

Harry Lauder, at a dinner in Washington, said of his kilt: "Speaker Cannon tells me that the kilt would never be popular on the wind-swept prairies of Illinois. Why not? The bare knee hardens to the cold like the bare face. But to hear some people talk, you'd think the kilt as intolerable as Sanders McDowell's top hat. Sanders McDowell, a coal heaver of Peebles, said angrily to his wife one night:

"'Havers, Lisebeth, hoo many times am I to tell ye I wanna hae the children bringin' up coal in my top hat?" "Hoot, Sanders, mon, be reasonable," said Lisebeth. "Ye've spoilt the shape o' the top hat wi' yer funny head a'ready; an' since ye're heavin' coal all day, wot can a little extra coal dust in the head-piece matter?" "Woman, ye dinna grasp ma argyment," said Sanders. "I only wear that top hat in the evenin', an' if, whiles I'm out, I tak' it off, it leaves a black band round ma forehead. What's the rasoolt? Why, I'm accused on all sides o' washin' ma face wi' ma hat on!"

In Memory of

Old New England graveyards are not the only ones which contain curious epitaphs. The old-time dweller of Maine who "died of a falling tree," as his headstone asserts, had a fellow in misfortune in far off Austria, as is shown by W. A. Baillie-Grohman's "The Tyrol and the Tyrolese."

A wooden slab, painted with the representation of a prostrate tree under which lies a man in spread-eagle attitude, bears testimony to the violent death of "Johann Lemberger, aged 52 and three-quarters years. This upright and virtuous youth was squashed by a falling tree."

The record of Michael Gerstner is even more succinct and convincing. He "Climbed up, fell down, and was dead."

Lewis' Single Binder gives the smoker what he wants, a rich, mellow-tasting cigar.

The Experienced Swine.

The crowd around the postoffice store, after exhausting the possibilities of politics, local and national, had been discussing the alleged lack of the truth-telling instinct in Old Man Simpkins. Uncle Ezra came in, and Jim Peters said:

"What do you think about it, Uncle Ezra—would you call Old Man Simpkins a liar?"

"Well," answered Uncle Ezra slowly as he thoughtfully studied the ceiling, "I wouldn't go so far as to call the old man a liar, but I do know it to be a fact that when feedin' time comes to get any response he has to have somebody else call his hogs for him."

Mothers will find Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup the best remedy to use for their children during the teething period.

New Mexico.

The country now called Mexico was not so called till 1810, when the revolt against Spain began. Up to independence the country was called New Spain and was divided into the same number of provinces as Spain, each with a name of a province in Spain, with the prefix of "New," but New Mexico was not included in this division. It got its name in this way:

In 1561 Francisco Ibarra was in charge of an expedition of exploration into what is now northern Durango and southern Chihuahua and discovered an Indian village near where Santa Barbara now stands in which the houses were whitewashed and the people made and wore cotton cloth, raising the cotton in the neighborhood. He wrote an account of his discovery to his brother in the City of Mexico, telling him he had discovered "una nueva Mexico," a new Mexico, another Mexico, meaning that he had found another town like the City of Mexico, and thereafter all this portion of northern New Spain was known as "Nueva Mexico"—that is, New Mexico—which name it has retained, though now much reduced in extent.—Las Vegas Optic.

Just the Same.

Little Mary was playing with her pet kitten. The kitten scratched her, and she exclaimed, "You is a darned old kitty."

Her mother told her she must never utter such a naughty word again; and to be sure to impress it on her mind, washed her mouth out with soap and water.

The next day Mary was again playing with the kitten, and again trouble arose, when she was heard to remark: "You is just the same kind of a kitten you was yesterday."

A Fable Perhaps.

When George Ade was coming from New Orleans last winter he noticed, among the race-track men on the train, one tan-shoe sheet writer with the largest feet he had ever seen.

And he furthermore testifies and affirms that the sheet writer, on rising in the morning, discovered that the porter had shined one shoe and a suitcase.—Success Magazine.

Balsac by the Yard.

A well-known author not long ago stepped into a book store, but for some little time could not attract the attention of a clerk, all interest being centered in a stout gentleman who was jotting down figures on a pad. The author strolled over in that direction and heard the head clerk remark:

"And now, sir, you have almost completed the library of which you will be proud; but, of course, you will want Balsac?"

"Well, I don't know, now. You see, we've only got two feet and seven inches' space left," the old gentleman replied. "Go ahead and measure him, though, and if he isn't too wide I'll take him, too," he added.—Success Magazine.

A Marvelous Saw.

It makes the man who is interested in the salvation of the forests of the world gasp for breath when he enters a shop in Paris where the paving blocks for the city's streets are being made. Paris is a very large city, and it takes a great many blocks to keep the streets in good condition. A recently invented and established sawing machine turns out as many as 240,000 blocks a day. An endless chain receives the planks, which are already cut to a certain required length and thickness, and carries them on to a system of seventeen saws, where they are quickly cut up into blocks of the right size for paving and are then turned out at the other end of the monster machine.
